

Autumn Miller

This Pulaski Academy and Central School alumna is helping keep the power on for families in the district and across central New York.

Autumn Miller is a 2017 PACS graduate who now works as a nuclear technician.

“Work at nuclear power plants must continue uninterrupted to provide safe and reliable electricity to the public and the bulk electric system during this crisis,” said Miller.

Miller said she hopes people find the positives during this unprecedented time.

“We must stick together and keep up safe and healthy practices,” said Miller. “We have the opportunity to read more, practice self-care, learn something new and enjoy time with our families.”

Miller said since she is an essential worker, she cannot risk seeing her family and noted that she really misses family dinners.

“Use this experience to really learn to not take things for granted and be appreciative of all you have,” said Miller. “Stay safe and wash your hands!”
