This Pulaski Academy and Central School alumna is on the “frontlines” about as much as anyone during this unprecedented time.

Lisa Carl Miller, a 1980 PACS graduate, works as a respiratory therapist at Mercy Hospital of Buffalo.

“I’m responsible for setting up and managing ventilators for critically ill patients who require breathing assistance,” said Miller. “Our shifts are often stressful (now especially), so great teamwork is vital to provide the best care for all.”

Miller said times are frightening, but with a collaborative effort, we can make it through.

“We can get through this if we stick together and all do our part like social distancing and staying home if we can,” said Miller.
